

Quake Global Open-Source Compliance

The Quake Global QConnect device is compliant with all Open-Source licensing requirements.

Quake Global uses certain open-source software in connection with its products. Quake provides an open-source disclosure statement that identifies the open-source software that is used and the governing licenses and provides other information as required by applicable open-source licenses.

For open-source components that are subject to a requirement that source code be made available, we make a written offer to make a complete machine-readable copy of the corresponding source code available for download at QuakePublic · GitLab. (<https://gitlab.com/quakepublic>)

We request that you maintain intact and pass along with any transfer of our product the disclosure statement.
